A Little Thing Called Love is a beautiful love story, love of God, love of a wife and her husband, and a daughter's love for her mother. Alone in her home, Betty paced around and around the large oak dining table that had been her parents. 'Why me?' she questioned over and over until finally the answer came. 'What makes me so special that I can't be inflicted with Alzheimer's disease?' She had always believed that everything that happens has a purpose. What good could possibly come out of having Alzheimer Disease? Betty would use her talents for writing and mentoring others to tell what it was like to be an Alzheimer victim. In Rebecca's endeavor to fulfill her promise to complete Betty's work, it became obvious that her story as Betty's caregiver needed to be included. A Little Thing Called Love is an inspirational, heartfelt story of a daughter and her mothers' journey through Alzheimer disease.
