When things take place that causes a chain reaction that affects not only Whispering Willows, but also the people who live there, you learn that sometimes people leave more behind than they realize. Caitlyn Reed's life changed drastically when she met Gregory Ferris, and not for the best in the long run. When she finds out what Gregory has done at Whispering Willows, she decides she has to do what she can to release the evil that he has left on the amazing home. What she didn't realize was that it wasn't just Gregory's evil that had taken over the home, but someone else's--someone from the past. Murder isn't something that Pointe Creole hasn't dealt with in the past. When a new string of murders leaves the police with no leads, that's when Caitlyn realizes there might just be more to the noises the old house is making. With the handyman, Scott, by her side, Caitlyn embarks on her mission to rid the house of the evil. While at the same time, trying to ensure that the murderer that is on the loose isn't after her as well. Will Caitlyn be able to free Whispering Willows of the evil that haunts it, or will it be too much for her? Are the police of Pointe Creole going to be able to catch the serial killer before another woman is found?
