In this book, you will find cartoon-illustrated lessons with introductions for adults about how to introduce concepts and practice skills with children. The purpose is to prepare children to take charge of their emotional and physical safety with peers, familiar adults, acquaintances and strangers.

These skills can help kids protect themselves from most bullying, abuse, kidnapping, and other violence – and prepare them to develop positive peer relationships that can enrich their lives.

Lessons include:

Working Out Problems To Be Safer and Have More Fun

Kathy Rideout, Director of Montessori School of Santa Cruz County, which has been using the Kidpower program for over 20 years, says, “We are excited to have these new resources for helping our teachers and other staff integrate teaching Kidpower safety strategies and skills into their daily activities. The Positive Peer lessons are especially important in creating a common language with our students to help prevent bullying.”
