Here Is A Preview of the book..Oh, and there is a gift at the end of the book.

Wolves are pack animals. They never hunt alone except when food is especially scarce. There is, however, an exception to that rule. His name is Gary.

Gary is a wolf unlike any other. Besides hunting alone, Gary has a ton of odd traits. He likes to sit with his legs in the water, he likes to dig a hole two blocks wide to sleep in, and he only likes sleeping on dirt that has been cultivated by humans. That last trait can sometimes get Gary in unfortunate situations.

After several days of sleeping in the wheat field of some human who Gary has decided to call Steve, it seemed that Steve had had enough. On the last night that Gary slept in the field, he heard a strange noise. Unlike all the other rustling and such that filled the night air, this seemed especially out of place. Gary decided that it was simply the wind, or some pig that wandered off from the group, and left it at that. Gary closed his tired eyes and went back to dreamland.

In this dream, Gary was an alpha. An alpha led the pack. An alpha was the most respected, most loved, and most admired wolf in the pack. In real life, Gary was the opposite of an alpha. He was a lone wolf by choice, that's what he told himself. In reality, it was the pack who decided to make Gary a lone wolf. You see, Gary can't do the one thing that makes a wolf, well, a wolf. Gary doesn't eat meat.

But in Gary's dream, he was finally being given the recognition he deserved. He was so sucked into his dream, that he didn't wake up when the trap was set off. When Gary finally awoke, he was in an iron cage, in the worst place imaginable. Gary was in Steve the human's home.
